

Scenarios

James is 15 and comes intermittently to cheder. You are one of the cheder teachers for his age group, and as you are on your way to lunch overhear two girls laughing about the fact that they saw him trying on a dress at the shopping centre over the weekend.

1. What is the problem here? Why is it a problem?
2. What would a good situation look like?
3. What could be done to make that good situation?
4. Who else could be brought in to support creating that change?

You are a madrich on summer camp, and Shira, one of your 14 year old chanichot comes to talk to you. She tells you that she is gay, and that she is scared to go home at the end of camp.

1. What is the problem here? Why is it a problem?
2. What would a good situation look like?
3. What could be done to make that good situation?
4. Who else could be brought in to support creating that change?

You have been invited to Shabbat lunch at friends of yours. Over lunch one of the other people makes a rude comment about the fact that someone you know is a gay. This person has never been out to you.

1. What is the problem here? Why is it a problem?
2. What would a good situation look like?
3. What could be done to make that good situation?
4. Who else could be brought in to support creating that change?